

Weekly Newsletter

31st January 2025

Welcome to this week's newsletter.

This week children have supported the NSPCC national Number Day with a focus on number based activities in Friday's lessons. We made the conscious decision not to raise cash funds as we are mindful that parents/ carers were very generous in the build up to Christmas and we will soon be celebrating World Book Day.

On Monday we had an assembly to teach the children about Chinese New Year, which is this week and reminded the children just how many people around the world will be celebrating the year of the snake.

On Monday our Governor who oversees safeguarding visited the school to look at our policies, procedures and processes. This visit also included an opportunity to talk to relevant staff and a small group of children. The feedback was very positive.

Thank you to all the parents/ carers that joined us on Tuesday afternoon to learn more about our approach to the teaching and development of children's writing. The end of the afternoon was an opportunity for us to share our approach to the teaching of writing and to share how our values based approach to learning works.

Key Messages

Writing Showcase

On Tuesday afternoon parents and carers were able to join us to learn more about how we are striving to improve children's writing across the school. There was an opportunity to see children engaged in writing activities and this was followed by a short presentation about how we teach writing and spelling as well as a chance to hear how the Charville values thread through the curriculum. The slides from the presentation were sent out on Wednesday for your information.

Thank you to all those that were able to attend.
